Top Ratings for HHL in the CHE Ranking

HHL Leipzig Graduate School of Management topped the table of the ranking of Master programs which was compiled by the Centrum für Hochschulentwicklung (Center for Higher Education Development, CHE) and will be published in the edition of ZEIT CAMPUS 1/2021. The summary by CHE reads, “Among the Saxon universities, HHL in Leipzig has been positively rated in particular by the students from its Master programs in the field of business administration. This university achieves top ranks in the nationwide comparison for its student support, teaching portfolio but also the relationship to science in the programs.”

(CHE press release dated November 30, 2020)

HHL ranks among the frontrunners in the following categories:

Teaching Portfolio, Study Organization, Student Support, Studying Abroad, Transition from Bachelor to Master Program.

The Centrum für Hochschulentwicklung (CHE) evaluates student reviews as well as facts on instruction and research to rank the different Master programs. HHL students awarded top grades to the study organization in the CHE Ranking. They stated that they were 100 percent satisfied with the number of participants per class.

Roman Pastoors, HHL Master student (MSc20):

“I can only confirm the results from my own experience. HHL is a very personal university. Despite its growing size and internationality, everybody knows everyone. The course content is perfectly coordinated and tailored to the students’ needs. The excellent guidance offered by the professors and the appropriate group sizes in class make business administration studies here a very pleasant and highly effective experience.”

The content and range of courses is also appreciated very highly by HHL students.

Prof. Dr. Alexander Lahmann, Academic Director of HHL's Master Programs, says:
"We are thrilled that our students award top grades to HHL's teaching portfolio as well. They appreciate the opportunity to choose an individual focus, the school's international orientation and the broad curriculum. Our interdisciplinary offer which closely links the classic fields of business administration such as finance, marketing and strategy seems to provide the students with precisely what is relevant to the executives of tomorrow."
